

Abstract

In a network bridge, means (BGF) are provided for monitoring the contents and/or volume of incoming and/or outgoing data that are flowing through the network bridge or its memory (F). The means (BGF) can be configurable and/or controllable by a 5 higher-level instance (BMC), or can be predefined.

(Figure 2)